CONNECTING TALENT WITH COMMUNITY

Discover Learning Lab... Capturing the Energy and Expertise of People Age 50+

The Experience Matters Consortium invites you to join us for an introduction to the Learning Lab workshops which will be offered in Phoenix this June. Attendees for this event will:

- Sample the Learning lab curriculum
- Understand how the Learning Lab has improved the resources of agencies in communities such as Philadelphia, San Francisco, and Kansas City.
- Have an opportunity to apply for participation in the June workshop. (The workshop will be free for the selected organizations)

Key Note Speaker:

Nancy A. Henkin, Ph.D., As the founder and Executive Director of the Intergenerational Center at Temple University, Nancy is a leading authority in the fields of intergenerational programming, civic engagement and service learning. In 2006, she was elected into the Ashoka Fellowship, a global community of social entrepreneurs who are delivering innovative solutions to society's most pressing problems for her efforts to build Communities for All Ages.

What is a Learning Lab?

This three-day intensive training offers staff development for non-profit professionals whose organizations are committed to growing their talent resources. Participants will learn how to:

- Draw on the talents, skills, and passions of People 50+
- Craft compelling opportunities that will appeal to Boomers and their elders
- Develop effective ways to market opportunities
- Manage an intergenerational workforce
- Create a doable, outcomes-driven Action Plan
